RICHARDSON'S HISTORY OF GREEK SCULPTURE

By RUFUS B. RICHARDSON

Formerly Director of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens

Price, $1.50

This work is the fruit of long and uninterrupted study by a distinguished American scholar who has enjoyed an unrivaled opportunity to acquire an immediate knowledge of his subject. It is written, as it were, in the presence of the monuments themselves. For ten years Professor Richardson was Director of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens, and each year lectured to the members of the School on the remains of Greek sculpture in Athens and in other parts of Greece made familiar to him by extensive travel. The author's first-hand acquaintance with the Greek sculpture preserved in the chief museums of Europe has also given his book a quality of freshness and independence of view. The volume aims to combine description with criticism, and includes frequent reference (in footnotes) to recent work by expert archaeologists. It is profusely illustrated, and contains photographic reproductions of many Greek sculptures not ordinarily represented in works on the subject.

STUDY OF LATIN INSCRIPTIONS

By JAMES C. EGBERT, Ph.D

Professor of Roman Archaeology and Epigraphy, Columbia University

Price, $3.50

"The great interest and value to the classical student and the classical reader of such a work as this can not possibly be overstated. It puts within the reach of every one a mass of material and of admirably selected information such as no other single volume now in existence affords; and whether one be interested in epigraphy proper or in collateral subjects of study, Professor Egbert's volume is simply invaluable. It opens with an introduction giving a full and serviceable account of the bibliography of the subject, and, following this, takes up the history and morphology of the Latin alphabet, numerals, the Roman name, and the names and titles of the emperors, with chronological lists and official titles. A great number of selected inscriptions are included, classified as tituli and as documents. A striking feature is the lavish reproduction by photography of the most significant inscriptions in their actual forms." — Review in The Bookman.

SCHOOL OF AMERICAN ARCHAEOLOGY

THE SCHOOL OF AMERICAN ARCHAEOLOGY was founded by the Archaeological Institute of America in 1907, to conduct the researches of the Institute in the American field, direct the expeditions of the branch Societies, and afford opportunities for field work and training to students of archaeology and ethnology. Expeditions for the excavation of ancient American ruins are sent out from time to time. Students of archaeology and ethnology will be admitted to expeditions on satisfying the Director as to qualifications for the work proposed. Terms of admission will be furnished on application.

The Central American Fellowship with a stipend of $600 is awarded annually. Other Fellowships are to be established as soon as funds are secured for their maintenance. The School coöperates in research with the Bureau of American Ethnology and with universities and scientific organizations, both home and foreign. Correspondence is invited with reference to such collaboration in either field or archive work in American subjects.

For further information, address the Director,

EDGAR L. HEWETT,

Santa Fe,

New Mexico.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF SUMMER FIELD SESSION, 1911

The Summer Field Session for 1911 of the School of American Archaeology, of the Archaeological Institute of America, will be held at El Rito de los Frijoles, near Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Facilities will be given students to observe or to participate in the excavations, begun in 1908, and now in progress at Tyuonyi, near-by talus pueblos and cliff-dwellings. Excursions will be made to facilitate a study of botanical and other environmental conditions of the tribes dwelling in the vicinity. During August, lectures will be given on the distribution and culture of the tribes in the southwestern section of the United States and northern Mexico; on the evolution of design in ancient Pueblo art; on the native languages, and methods of recording them. A course will be given by Dr. Lewis B. Paton, formerly Director of the American School in Jerusalem of the Archaeological Institute of America, on "The Ancient Semites," to afford opportunity for a comparative study of cultures developed in semi-arid regions in the Eastern and in the Western continents. Other lectures for comparative studies are being arranged.

The object of the annual Summer Field Session is to bring together persons interested in the study of archaeology and ethnology for first-hand investigation and discussion, and to give students the opportunity for field work needed to supplement university instruction. The attention of teachers and students of pedagogy is called to the bearing of this work upon the practical problems of education. At the close of the session there will be excursions to the pueblos of Taos, Acoma, and Zuni, and the government excavations among the cliff-dwellings in the Mesa Verde National Park, Colorado.

For details of the Summer Session, address

DIRECTOR OF THE SCHOOL OF AMERICAN ARCHAEOLOGY,

Santa Fe,

New Mexico

AMERICAN SCHOOL AT ATHENS

THE AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES AT ATHENS was founded by the Archaeological Institute of America in 1881, and is in great measure supported by the coöperation of leading American Universities and Colleges. No charge for tuition is made to graduates of the supporting institutions; other students are required to pay a fee of $25 per annum for tuition and library privileges. Two Fellowships, with a stipend of $600 each, are awarded on examination; the examinations in 1912 (for the Fellowships of 1912-1913) will be held on March 14-16. A Fellowship in Architecture also will be maintained for the next two years by the Carnegie Institution of Washington. The library of the School contains more than 4000 carefully selected volumes.

The Director of the School is Mr. B. H. HILL. In 1911-1912 the annual professorship is held by Professor CHARLES BURTON GULICK, of Harvard University. He will be succeeded in 1912-1913 by Professor CLARENCE P. BILL, of Western Reserve University.

For further information, address the Chairman of the Managing Committee,

Professor JAMES R. WHEELER,
Columbia University, New York, N.Y.

AMERICAN SCHOOL IN ROME

THE AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES IN ROME (Via Vicenza, 5) was founded in 1895 by the Archaeological Institute of America, and is affiliated with it and with the American School at Athens. It offers to graduates in Arts of American Colleges, and, under exceptional circumstances, to other persons of marked qualifications, instruction and assistance in advanced classical and archaeological studies. Regular courses of lectures and practical exercises, chiefly in the field or in the museums, are given by the resident American instructors and by distinguished foreign specialists. Liberal opportunities for study are afforded in the great museums and libraries. Archaeological excursions are arranged for and conducted. The Director of the School is Professor JESSE BENEDICT CARTER. The Professor of Latin for 1911-1912 is Professor GORDON J. LAING, of the University of Chicago.

Tuition is free to graduates of "coöperating colleges." One or more Fellowships in Classical Archaeology, each of $600, and usually one in Christian Archaeology, of $500, are awarded annually on competitive examination, which (for the Fellowships of 1912-1913) will be held on March 11-12, 1912. Two Research Fellowships also, each of $800, have been established by the Carnegie Institution, which will be awarded for the year 1912-1913.

For further information, address the Chairman of the Managing Committee,

Professor ANDREW F. WEST,
Princeton University, Princeton, N.J.

AMERICAN SCHOOL IN JERUSALEM

THE AMERICAN SCHOOL OF ORIENTAL RESEARCH IN JERUSALEM was founded in 1900, and is affiliated with the Archaeological Institute of America. It is supported by a number of American Universities and Theological Seminaries and by private subscriptions. The School offers to properly qualified persons excellent opportunities for the study of the geography, archaeology, and history of Syria, and of the Semitic languages. No charge for tuition is made to graduates of the supporting institutions; other students are required to pay a fee of $25 per annum. A Fellowship, with a stipend of $600, is awarded annually on examination. The Director of the School for 1911-1912 is Professor J. F. MCCURDY, of the University of Toronto. The Chairman of the Committee on Fellowships is Professor CHARLES C. TORREY, Yale University, New Haven, Conn.
